Why did you choose to study in the School of the Environment?

I decided to study in the School of the Environment because it has a good reputation for its research productivity, excellence in teaching and learning, international collaborations, and is supportive of students in many ways.

What is your favourite memory from your time with the School?

My favourite memory is when I took ENV100. A great course that made me look at the world differently.
What have you learned about yourself through the program?

I learned how to use my time in an efficient and effective way, improve my studying techniques, and connect with other students in the program.

Do you have any advice for incoming students?

I would suggest creating a schedule and getting involved in extracurricular activities. For example, getting involved with ENSU (The Environmental Student Union) is a good way to connect with students that share the same interests.

What are your plans upon graduation?

I decided that the next best decision could be graduate school to compliment my future career.

How have you been affected by the global COVID-19 pandemic? What are your thoughts about the future?

It was really sad not getting the chance to say goodbye to friends, professors and faculty members who played a major role during my undergrad. However, I am happy that I had the opportunity to know and work with them. I am sure future generations will have the chance to meet the amazing people that make the School of the Environment a very special place.
